Abstract

The Aledade platform is designed to empower independent primary care practices by helping them transition to value-based care through participation in Accountable Care Organizations (ACOs). This documentation provides a comprehensive overview of the Aledade platform, including its purpose, scope, available services, key stakeholders, features, design and implementation constraints, product environment, assumptions and dependencies, functional and nonfunctional requirements, and recommendations for successful deployment and usage.

Services

Private Practices

You don't have to choose between the joy of practicing medicine and running a successful, sustainable business.

Group Practices

Administrative workloads and compliance hurdles don't have to come between you and your patients.

Community Health Centers

Quality, accessible patient care should be your focus, not trying to navigate evolving policies and program requirements.

Networks and Existing ACOs

Success in value-based care starts with member accountability, and you can't achieve that without timely performance data.

Features

- Population Health Management: Tools to manage patient populations and identify high-risk patients.
- Predictive Analytics: Data-driven insights to anticipate patient needs and optimize care.
- Interoperability: Integration with existing Electronic Health Record (EHR) systems.
- Telehealth Support: Capabilities to deliver remote care services.
- Quality Reporting: Automated reporting to meet ACO and payer requirements.

WHAT'S AN ACO

Better care and better contracts – more easily.

Accountable Care Organizations (ACOs) provide members with access to more patients and performance information and payer contracts that align with quality of care.

I don't know where my practice would be without Aledade. I am empowered with what Aledade provides me so I can actually make a difference for my patients.

Dr. Brenda Vozza - Internal Medicine, Texas

WHO WE WORK WITH

Experience you can trust.

Value-based care is more than a buzzword. It's a way of thinking about primary care practices and the largest urban hospitals and community health centers in the U.S. Alameda's financial and quality results show you the competitive advantage they need for a value-based landscape.

Private Practices

You don't have to choose between the joy of practicing medicine and meeting a sustainable, sustainable business.

Group Practices

Administrative work and complex medical debt have to go. Let's get you and your patients.

Community Health Centers

Quality, sustainable patient care should be your focus, not trying to manage multiple policies and programs.

Networks and Existing ACOs

Networks in value-based care share with members accountability and you can't deliver that without shared performance data.

WHERE WE ARE

A local approach to value-based care.

Our ACOs are in the U.S. creating better health where you live, and that's how we stay and business challenges there - we're there with you helping you look for the path forward.

Alameda is a place where our mission defines everything we do. Where we do not choose doing well over doing good. Where we hold ourselves accountable for the promises we make - to patients, practice and society.

WHY ALEDADE

All ACOs are not the same.

While they might sound similar, great ACOs do things differently because they can do things other ACOs can't. Great ACOs can reliably improve your financial position, but they also understand how to sustain success. Discover the Alameda difference.
